Once upon a time there was a chameleon Prince called “Umnyama” meaning “Rainbow” because he liked to change colour depending on how he was feeling and where he was sitting. His favourite place to play was in a bush with many colourful flowers, because it made him happy. After a big storm, he saw a beautiful rainbow in the blue sky and knew that if he believed in himself and worked hard, he could be King of the Chameleons, because he was brave and kind to everyone. And one day his dream came true and he wore a royal purple cloak with a crown and he was the best King that ever lived. The End.
